Abdurrazak's version of the chronicle of Wajo gives reign lengths for the elected rulers of Wajo from the fifteenth century onwards. It records a three year period after the death of La Tadampareq when no ruler was elected and La Tadampareq's ashes are said to have reigned. The five rulers before La Patiroi (early fifteenth century) have no reign lengths and the relationship between the first two rulers and the subsequent three rulers is uncertain. The names and order of Wajo's rulers after c.1400 is consistent across the three versions examined, reflecting an established tradition.
